About the CTSI

The UF CTSI works on many fronts to improve research and health. It provides resources for research teams, career development programs, pilot project funding and an extensive network of local, state and national partners.

CTSI Web Portal

Visit the CTSI's website for information about additional programs and research services: www.ctsi.ufl.edu.

CTSI Listserv

Subscribe to the CTSI listserv by emailing Meghan Meyer, meghanmeyer@ufl.edu.

The UF CTSI is supported by NIH Clinical and Translational Science Awards UL1TR001427, KL2TR001429 and TL1TR001428, and by significant support from UF's Office of Research and UF Health.

CTSI Service Center

The goal of the UF Clinical and Translational Science Institute's Service Center is to provide research services and resources to investigators performing translational research across the UF campus. The CTSI Service Center works closely with investigators, the UF Institutional Review Boards, the UF College of Medicine Research Administration and Compliance office and service providers across the CTSI and the university.

Services

The CTSI Service Center provides a range of services to research teams, including biostatistical and regulatory support, IT and data support through our CTSI-IT and Research Electronic Data Capture (REDCap) teams, and facilities to conduct research through the UF Clinical Research Center. Our research navigators advise research teams on available resources and help them navigate research-related processes. Navigators are well versed in IRB application preparation, protocol development, Good Clinical Practice guidelines, and NIH research rules and standards for the design, conduct, performance, monitoring, data collection, management, analysis, and reporting of clinical trials. The CTSI Service Center also links investigators to other CTSI resources and core facilities, such as the CTSI Biorepository, UF Health Integrated Data Repository, CTSI Human Imaging Core, Southeast Center for Integrated Metabolomics, Genotyping Core, Center for Cellular Reprogramming, Center for Simulation, Safety and Advanced Learning Technologies, and Biobehavioral Core. See reverse for a table summarizing the various services affiliated with the CTSI Service Center.

IMPROVING HEALTH THROUGH RESEARCH SERVICES AND RESOURCES

UF Clinical and Translational
Science Institute
UNIVERSITY of FLORIDA

The UF Clinical and Translational Science Institute's Service Center provides a range of services and resources to investigators performing translational research across campus.

Not sure where to start? Research navigators can help direct your team to the right resources.

Navigators are well-versed in:

- IRB application preparation
- Good clinical practice (GCP) guidelines
- Protocol development
- NIH research rules and standards

The UF Clinical Research Center provides services for studies involving any disease area or age group, from neonates to older adults. The UF CRC's highly trained research staff includes registered nurses, research coordinators, a research dietitian, investigational pharmacists and administrative personnel.

The Service Center's programs, resources and core facilities can assist you in:

- Designing a study
- Recruiting participants
- Execute research
- Managing data and software
- Navigating regulations
- Using translational technologies

See reverse for details and contact information for CTSI Service Center providers.

The UF CTSI is supported by NIH Clinical and Translational Science Awards UL1TR001427, KL2TR001429 and TL1TR001428, and by significant support from UF's Office of Research and UF Health.
